

First post, 'Orisinal : Morning Sunshine'

2013/10/24

Orisinal is probably one of the first site's I ever bookmarked on the Internet. That was back in 2000 and I've always remembered it fondly. The reason? It was and, more than 10 years later, still is a one page site with a lot of very beautiful flash games. It hasn't changed much in all those years and that's perfectly fine with me. I tend to visit it every few years and it's nice to see a few new games each time. At the time I'm writing this it has 62 games, which generally are action games with a cutesy style & nice relaxing music. They are a perfect example of casual games in that they have simple mechanics, yet generally seem well designed in terms of difficulty and high scores.

With regards to that last remark: I adore the beauty of these games, yet I don't seem to enjoy playing them more than once or twice. So if you want to try out how good they exactly are, you'll have to try them yourself. Also on a last note, it seems Ferry Halim (the author) has made iOS apps of the Flash games. So if you own an apple product you can play them on your iPad or iPhone now.

Update, 2022-01-24: Flash Player is no longer supported since the end of 2020, so the site doesn't work anymore. There are Flash emulator options for browsers (i.e. Ruffle). I tried that and the site seems to work if you use those.
